IRRIGATE OR IMMIGRATE

Feeling of the People Practically Unanimously in Favor of Irrigation.
Matter of Finance will be the Only Delay.

The first step towards procuring irrigation is the organization of an irrigation district. The first step towards organization is the presentation of petitions to the government signed by fifty-one per cent of the registered land owners in the district to be irrigated. By the timely assistance of the provincial department of agriculture these petitions will be circulated within the course of two weeks time. Canvassers will be provided with survey data when carrying petitions showing lands subject to the water levels.

When an entire quarter section within the irrigation area is above the water level said parcel is not included in the lands defined as composing the irrigation district.

If negotiations for irrigation prevail all lands subject to the water privileges must submit to the bonding issue.

Each quarter section affected is bonded in its entirety, but only to the extent of cost the actual acreage available to the water rights. The rights of security do not extend beyond the boundary of each quarter section.

The government determines the source of water supply, but the first law of nature compels us to fight for the Canada Land & Irrigation Co. distribution. If we join the Lethbridge-Northern only apt to give us secondary water rights.

Hon. A. J. McLean says that irrigation is a remedy to but fifty per cent of the blown area. We consider half the territory under irrigation sufficient to double the population and wealth of the country.

A twenty-five bushel wheat crop on the area adjoining the four towns of Retlaw, Enchant, Travers and Lomond would have meant twenty million dollars of wealth production under the present prices of grain. Why should the government hesitate over guaranteeing our irrigation bonds?

Fairfield of Lethbridge compares dry farming and irrigation results after eleven years of experiments. 53 bushels an acre against 15½ is a pretty strong argument in favor of water.

The Dave Munro farm is the nearest point to Lomond to be touched by the proposed system.

There is no definite estimate of the cost of construction yet prepared but Fairfield considers it a good investment even at seventy-five dollars an acre.

BOUNTIFUL SHOWERS BRING RELIEF

The relief of the severe mental strain under which the people all through Southern Alberta has been laboring since the advent of the violent winds on the 18th of May came to a sudden break on Wednesday afternoon. A very generous shower of rain lasting for an hour or more sort of rebuilt our hopes which had been placed mostly upon the foundation of optimism. Again today all fears of drouth were washed away, since a rain lasting all told about five hours has completely re-established crop assurance. The prospects for final results look better than most had anticipated, since a good deal of blown land is coming back. If it does not get to the mature stage it will at least provide a source of fodder. It is plenty early to risk barley and oats and a good bit of the cut worm land will be reseeded. The intense heat of the past couple of weeks warmed the ground to a nicety and everything will shoot ahead with remarkable rapidity.

o o o

Far from weakening our ardor with the irrigation agitation, the rain merely accentuated the need of it in the country. The strain of uncertainty is a heavier burden to bear than the financial end of irrigation. We will know by the time of the next issue about what the chances are for the continuance of irrigation negotiations.

LOCALS

Lomond ball fans witnessed another good exhibition of ball when Travers came up and beat us to it on our home diamond Thursday afternoon. As usual the game was about two hours late in getting started. The home boys got away to a good start but the Travers fellows made a get-away and gained a lead which could not be overcome, finishing the game 14-10. Travers had some extra imported material on their team and the game was really worth while to watch. Lomond played all home boys and no one is going to hold defeat against them.

L. M. Swain and Abe Parker took a business trip up as far as Lacombe by motor this week. They report the dry area extending as far north as the Red Deer river.

Primrose Rebekah Lodge, No. 61, with install the officers for the new term on Tuesday evening, July 6th. In addition to this ice cream and cake will be served. All Rebekahs are urged to be in attendance.

Perhaps the most impressive expression of fraternalism ever witnessed in Lomond was celebrated on Sunday afternoon when Lomond Lodge, No. 127, I.O.O.F. conducted its annual decoration and memorial services and decorated the graves of the three departed brethren who had fallen under the hand of death since the lodge was instituted here in 1916. In addition to the three graves in the Lomond cemetery recognition was given to the memory of Wm. A. Isaacs who fell in battle during the war. Quite a following of outsiders joined with the brethren and took part in the services.

Lake Newell is attracting nearly everyone who can afford to buy gas. Perhaps it would be better to say that the fish supposed to be contained there-in are the greater attraction. Sometimes some of them get caught, but more often the fishermen. It is thought that in another couple of years Lake MacGregor will be abundantly stocked with fish. D. McInyre of Vulcan has a sail boat out on Lake MacGregor.

The Department of Agriculture is making an attempt to distribute rye seed to be seeded in a goodly percentage of the blown areas. Hon. A. J. McLean was in Lomond on Thursday looking things over, and he has stated that seed will be available for distribution on practically the same grounds as other distributions have been made.

Speaking of rains, it is said that in the really blown-out districts down around Monarch, Commerce, Barons, etc., none of the bountiful showers experienced in this district were good enough to go that far. The situation there is extremely serious.

He wrote the editor thus: "How can I break myself of the habit of cigarette smoking?"

The editorial come-back: "Go get a job in a powder mill."

"Irrigate or Immigrate" explains the situation very concisely.

GOOD, FAT, LOCALLY GROWN BEEF is about as hard to procure as at any time since the hard winter set in. We make a practice of buying local production as far as consistent, and have sometimes been compelled to put over the blocks meats that have not measured up to our own liking for quality. The local butcher both buys from and sells to the public and is supposed to please both ways. We would ask our buying customers to be considerate of local conditions. A few weeks more on the grass will properly finish ample beef for local supply. To those who anticipate marketing cattle we would ask them to hold until in prime condition. It pays you well in dollars and cents, for on the fat you get the weight and profits. It pays us better because we can please the consumer with a higher standard of quality.

Man is Helpless Before the Cutworm

Nature, through the medium of bountiful rainfall, is the only known remedy for the menace of cutworms. Man apparently is helpless until the seasons become more favorable again. A government "bug" expert visits Lomond and his ruminations are published below.

Entomological Laboratory,
Lethbridge, Alta., June 10, 1920.
The Manager,
Standard Bank of Canada,
Lomond, Alta.

Dear Sir:—

Your letter to Mr. Fairfield regarding cutworms has been handed to me for reply. We are, I am sorry to say, only too well aware of the damage that these pests are doing, and two Sundays ago we visited Lomond for the purpose of investigating the conditions there. The cause of increase during the past few years appears to be more a matter of successive dry seasons than anything else. This, combined with chinooks at this time of the year, which play havoc with the most important parasites. Wet seasons result in fungus diseases and less feeding on the part of the cutworms themselves, both of which reduce the damage, the first permanently and the latter temporarily.

Control measures are exceedingly difficult and uncertain in their results.

Deep late fall or early spring ploughing is somewhat effective, particularly the former; but since summerfallow land always suffers most (that is, after a normal year with good stubble on cropped land) this method will be little used. The idea of this method is that it buries the eggs (which are laid in the soil in August and September) so deeply that the larvae fail to reach the surface, and food, before starving. Deep ploughing stubble land which has been affected the previous year, however, is detrimental to the parasites which pass the winter in the soil where they emerge from the cutworms. The moths of the latter, however, usually fly to summerfallow for egg laying. Lumpy fallow land (an ideal condition to prevent blowing) is particularly attractive to the moths when egg laying in August and September since they hide under the clods by day. Clean fallowing will not keep these moths away, and a weedy smooth field at egg laying season is more safe than a newly worked clean one.

Poisoned baits are sometimes effective. The enclosed pamphlets indicate the best ones we have found, and the method of application, but we cannot conscientiously recommend them for general application to large areas which are affected throughout, or where more than fifty per cent of the crop is already gone. We are attempting to ascertain how long bait so applied remains effective and whether drilling it in, if possible, with the seed could have a beneficial effect.

I have written to you at length in order that you may have as complete a knowledge of the problem as possible. Your district, being one of the worst infested, may throw some light upon the question of prevention as data are obtained as to the methods whereby farmers handled their infested fields during the previous year. Unfortunately cultural methods which deter the moths from selecting certain fields merely drive them to others and do not reduce their numbers in a sufficiently large district to include all types of fields.

We hope to test moth traps this year. Could we catch the moths before they lay their eggs we should reduce the damage immensely.

If I can be of any further use to you or if you have any information which may aid us in solving this problem, I trust that you will not fail to write to me.

Yours truly,
E. H. Strickland.

man. That is one reason why he lives in the memory of the American people.

Let the life of Robert Louis Stevenson inspire men of greater optimism. Flat on his back he lay often for weeks at a time, his body racked with pain; yet not one weak or negative word escaped his lips. Instead, his glorious mind shaped his thought: "A happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five-pound note. Their entrance into a room is as though another candle were lighted."

Optimism, what wonderful power it is; what a wonderful power it gives! Optimism—the hub of harmony, the life and foundation of business and social progress; the sunshine of life, the steam of the human engine, the electric current that moves to action. Optimism—the key of perpetual youth, the builder of tissue, the feeder of nerves, the creator of health, the spark that ignites the magazine of inspiration, it the soul.

How develop Optimism? Be glad about something; be glad about everything; work yourself into a state of ecstasy. Get in tune. Keep in tune. Whistle and sing. And let the melody fill your life with gladness.—Mere Pep.

However, it is probably well that he did not, there being practically no enthusiasm worked up over the case and every body was pretty well cramped up over the persistent high winds that were cutting crops all to the bow-wows. Lomond and Travers

LOCALETS

Manager Armstrong and Secretary Barber went south this week to "bill" the country for Lomond's big celebration July 1st. Incidentally they arranged to have the Coaldale all-star ball team to play here in the tournament. Noble is pitching for Coaldale this year and we understand that Roy Witting is signing on with them as catcher.

Armada is bringing down a husky foot ball aggregation so it is up to Cap Erskine to give his pets a few hard workouts.

The committees are pretty well lined up with their organization and everything will be pulled off without a hitch.

H. E. Elves had the pleasure of a visit from his mother from Cayley this week. His brother, Frank, was also over from Cayley for a few days.

Sandy McLeod came up from Taber on Monday on a goat riding expedition.

The ball club is having some large rocks placed on the big hill just east of the sports grounds for the benefit of those who want to watch the cutworms work.

Several of Lomond's prominent citizens have run into the arms of the law recently when traversing beyond the safe confines of the village boundaries. Better stay home, boys, and push for irrigation.

Another Lomond citizen we know ran a car in the C.P.R. fence, but nobody is supposed to tell the section foreman anything about it.

The Lomond Sunday School is holding its annual picnic on the fair grounds Friday afternoon, June 25th. -- post from the 18th on account of the rain.

In Days of Yore

I remember, I remember
The days that used to be
When porterhouse was eighteen cents
And soup bones given free;
When milk was five cents by the quart
And butter twenty-four,
And bacon fifteen cents a pound.
In those brave days of yore.

I remember, I remember
When one could hire a maid
For three or four or five a week.

And when she came, she stayed;
But now they are a haughty clan
Who cost you eight or nine,
Who come to you at ten o'clock
And then at noon--resign.

I remember, I remember
When gentle working men
Would come when'er you asked them to.
For life was simpler then;
But now, although your pipes are burst,
And troubles leave you vexed,
You cannot get a bit of help
Until week after next.

I remember I remember
(Oh, why must visions fade)
When there was sugar sold to all
And coal men sought their trade;
But now the times are altered,
And there is little joy
In thinking of how cheap things were
When I was but a boy!
--Berton Braley.
